

SOLDIERS' SCHOOL FUNDS EXHAUSTED

Y. M. C. A. War Work Council Asks Discharge—Many Got Only Part Scholarships

"REGRETFUL OF CONDITION"

Funds appropriated by the Y. M. C. A. War Work Council for the education of world war veterans in Philadelphia and vicinity, exclusive of Germantown, have been exhausted, and the committee in charge has asked to be discharged.

The appropriation of the council for this work was $51,007.74.

According to the committee's report, the funds were exhausted because an unexpected number of former service men availed themselves of the educational offer. Many of the ex-soldiers were given part scholarships because there was not enough money to enable them to finish their work.

"It is with profound regret," the report of the committee says, "that we recognize that the funds provided for this purpose are not great enough to meet every real case of need among the ex-service men."

"We are the more regretful of this condition, inasmuch as we recognize that these young men have given a part of the most productive period of life to the service of the country, and are now handicapped in entering civilian life unless they can be given such advantages as these scholarships provide."

"As the funds assigned for these purposes are exhausted, the committee asks to be discharged."

Franklin Spencer Edmunds, of the Y. M. C. A., is chairman and the other members of the committee are Richard L. Austin, chairman of the Federal Reserve Bank; George Wentworth Carr, chairman of the Philadelphia county committee of the American Legion; George W. Braden, executive director of the Y. M. C. A.; William O. Easton, of the Y. M. C. A., and three advisory members, Robert Fuller, director of the board of vocational training; Roman C. Hassel, acting chief of the Bureau of Legal Aid, and John Phillips, of Typographical Union No. 2.

$114,825 FOR PENN CLUB

Committee Reports Progress in Plan for New York House

The committee at the University of Pennsylvania which started the movement to obtain funds for a clubhouse in New York, has already raised $114,825, it was announced yesterday.

Another campaign for funds is being launched. Alumni will be asked to subscribe to enable the university to maintain its prestige by building first-class headquarters in New York immediately.

Pennsylvania is virtually the only university of its size and standing in the country which has no clubhouse in New York. Graduates are urged to at least join one of the membership classes even if they are unable to purchase stock and thereby become sustaining members.
